When a man like Chief Justice Waite dies the people at large do not enough appreciate the loss. Congress and the President make laws, but there is often the thought of expediency or necessity behind them, and not unfrequently, when either party is in the majority, partisan injustice or a desire for partisan advantage is the real moving spring behind the act. But when the laws come to be tested they have to meet the judgment of men who cannot decide through prejudices or through passion; they have to declare the law by the rules laid down for their direction and through the restraints placed upon them. A dozen times have their clear edicts hushed the voice of popular clamor; often has a decision of the Supreme Court acted upon the country as does the governor act upon a steam engine in regulating and controlling its power. Men may scoff at Congress and the exalted office of the President can not always restrain indignant lips and pens from hurling anathemas at the executive, but there is a divinity that hedges the Supreme Court about, which causes all men of all parties and of all stages of intellectual development to accept its decisions as final, because the belief is never shaken, that there is behind them a holy motive, and that the motive is guided by the highest attainments and not reached by exhaustive study, so when a man passes away who for many years has been at the head of that august body, one who filled his place with an ability, dignity and stately gentleness that brought to him the perfect respect to all who knew him; then the loss is equal to that which comes when a President lays down his burdens and goes to his rest. The station of the President is nearer the people than is that of the Chief Justice; more of the world's passions and prejudices are in his ears; he has to be a strong man indeed to forget entirely that he is but a servant and that all his energies belong to his country, and often the spray of partisan anger is dashed in his face to disturb him; but the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States is on a plain to the level of which none of the echoes of the nation's displeasure or hate ever reach. The Chief Justice whose funeral is to take place to-day was worthy to be named in connection with the names of the illustrious men who held the office before him. In his place he toiled incessantly, and he held his place upon the bench, even when death was beginning to touch and freeze his pulses. He died literally with harness on his back. The highest honors which the nation can bestow upon his memory are his due. He filled the station to which he was named with perfect integrity and with rare intelligence; he worked to the end to maintain in all its original purity the trust placed in his hands, and toiled on until the robes of the bench had to be exchanged for the winding sheet. Tenderly should the brightest men of the nation gather near and bear back to his adopted State the ashes of him, who because of the life he lived, gave a new glory to that State and to his whole country.—Salt Lake Tribune, March 23.

The United States land officers for Oregon have petitioned Congress to increase the rates allowed for surveying public lands in that State. The country remaining to be surveyed is of a nature to make the work difficult and slow, and surveyors cannot do honest work and make a living at the rates per mile now given. This is equally true of Nevada.

Zangerle Forfeited.
The preliminary examination of Dr. J. B. Zangerle, the Comstock physician, who is out on $500 bonds, being charged with violating the smallpox ordinance, which was set for 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was postponed at the request of the doctor until 10 o'clock next Wednesday. This was granted on the representation of the doctor that he had tried to get counsel to defend him in Virginia City, but had failed to get any.

OVER THE WIRES.

AN APPALLING HORROR.

Over One Hundred Miners Killed or Injured.

KANSAS CITY, March 29.—An explosion occurred in mine 6 at Rich Hill, in Bates county, Missouri, this afternoon. One hundred miners were buried. Forty dead bodies have already been taken out.

About 4 o'clock this afternoon there was a rumbling sound heard in mine No. 6 at this place, and a moment after a terrible explosion that entirely wrecked the mine and buried in the debris over a hundred miners, who were out from all escape.

Forty bodies have already been taken out. The Superintendent of the mine was taken out badly injured, but will survive.

In the excitement and confusion it is impossible to give a list of the names, or even an estimate as to the full extent of the disaster, but it is now thought that over 50 men were killed. The mine is situated six miles distant from this town. There were two explosions, and it is said that the total loss of life will reach 60 men.

The Journal's special from Rich Hill says: The most horrible disaster that has ever occurred in the West happened at noon to day in Keith & Purry's No. 6 mine, and as a result a large number of men are entombed and thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed. Just at the dinner hour, when the men were ascending eight at a time on the cage, a terrible gas explosion occurred, killing every entry with a flame of fire, which shot out of the shaft.

It cannot be ascertained to-night how many men are yet in the mine, but at 11 o'clock one man had been taken out dead.

The work of removing the debris and cleaning the shaft has been going on all the afternoon, but it will be several hours before much can be done toward entering the mine proper.

A HEROIC SUPERINTENDENT.

A Journal reporter called at the residence of the Superintendent at 11 o'clock and found him propped up in a chair, with his face and hands bandaged and scarcely able to talk, but he made the following statement: "At just seven minutes after noon I was telephoned that an explosion had occurred at No. 6. I went out as soon as possible and found the south cage, on which the men always ascend, stuck in the shaft. I went down on a tub lowered with ropes, and found all badly burned and in a frenzy; in fact, they were crazy, some shouting and others singing. We finally managed to be hoisted, by means of ropes and pulleys, in a fainting condition, and it was then ascertained that the north cage could be worked.

I then called for volunteers to go down with me to see if any of the poor fellows at the bottom could be got out. Robert Borick, George Henry, Charles Smallwood and Mat. Dulemead responded. When we reached the bottom I looked through into the entry and saw a light, and I asked who was there. A voice responded 'Grady' and I told him to get out his light. I then asked him to crawl to me, but he fell exhausted and could not do so, and I reached through the small aperture and dragged him into the cage. Just as this was done the wind rushed with the velocity of a cyclone up the entry, putting out all our lights but one. This was followed by two loud reports and a seething flame of fire, which came with a deafening roar, completely enveloping us and shooting out of the mouth of the shaft 240 feet over our heads. We were all horribly burned, and thought our time had come. The flames left as suddenly as they came, and we had to abandon the attempt to save others. I yelled at the men on top to hold away and after what seemed hours we were started up and taken out in safety, though badly burned and greatly exhausted.

SENSATIONAL CONFESSION

How Return Certificates Were Peddled out to the Chinese.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—A sensation was created yesterday in the United States Circuit court in the trial of ex-Customs Inspector Ciprico, McLean and Whaley who were indicted in connection with W. A. Boyd for fraud and conspiracy in dealing in Chinese return certificates.

W. A. Boyd was placed on the stand and made a full confession of the conspiracy, in which he said F. D. Ciprico, E. W. McLean, J. E. Kipp, A. Hiss and himself were engaged. Boyd testified that in January, 1885, the conspirators agreed that Hiss should carry some certificates to China for sale. This he did a few days later, taking with him about five hundred certificates. They sent more certificates to Hiss on every steamer that sailed, amounting in all to five or six hundred. These were sold in China and the money returned here and divided.

Boyd stated the certificates were obtained by sending hundreds of Chinese to the custom house who had no intention of returning to China and then taking their white tags which they turned in at the Custom-house, and retained the red certificates.

Ciprico's counsel asked Boyd why he had made the agreement with him that he was to go scot free if he testified against Ciprico. Boyd declined to answer that question. He said that the nature of the agreement was known, and he did not want to say who had made the bargain with him for his testimony.

Counsel promptly appealed to the Court to compel Boyd to relate the circumstances that induced him to turn State's evidence.

Assistant District Attorney McPike objected, but Judge Sawyer ruled that his question was proper.

In answer to the question, Boyd said that McPike went to the Alameda county jail last night and told him what evidence the State had against him. At first Boyd said he was reluctant to turn State's evidence, but he finally resolved to tell the truth. The other conspirators had tried to make a scapegoat of him, and they tried to clear their skirts of all blame attaching to the conspiracy. They tried to keep him from getting bail and were successful, and he had already been sixty days in jail he became convinced that he must make a strike for his own liberty.

ARTHUR'S DENIAL.

He Says the Brotherhood Men Have Not Deserted Him.

CHICAGO, March 30.—In regard to the allegations that the radical element in the Brotherhood was chafing under the conservative measures adopted by their chief, and the statement that he had contemplated a simultaneous retirement from the strike with the Burlington and from his office as head of the organization, Chief Arthur said:

"The statement that the Burlington strikers have cut away from their leaders and their Grievance Committee is a base falsehood. There is not a word of truth in it. The Grievance Committee yesterday unanimously endorsed the action of the Grand Chief all the way through. If it is true that committees have been appointed by the radicals, and that they have visited every road running into Chicago, as reported, and obtained pledges from all switchmen and switch engineers that under no consideration will they move Burlington cars, it has been done unknown to me. I can't believe that the members of the Brotherhood will do anything contrary to the laws of the organization or what is not indorsed by me.

FOUR MEN SHOT.

ALlively Shooting Affray in Southern California.

SAN BERNARDINO, March 30.—About 8 o'clock last evening a shooting affair took place in a Third street saloon. Charles Codoria and Henry Wilson quarreled over a female in the place. The bartender, named Griffith, tried to put them out, when Codoria pulled a pistol and shot him in the head. Codoria then shot Wilson through the lung, and then a Mexican received a bullet from his pistol. Griffith had meantime gone after his pistol, and firing at Codoria he hit him in the leg. Codoria then sent a ball through Griffith's body and brought him to the floor. Griffith and Wilson are said to be dying. This is the worst shooting scrape that ever occurred in this place.

LATER.—Wilson, who was shot in the Ohio saloon frames last night, is dead, and Griffith, the bartender, is sinking rapidly.

FIRM AS A ROCK.

Attempts to Wean Senator Stewart from His Silver Views.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—It is stated that the tariff bill will be reported to the House on Monday.

The Republican Senators had a caucus this morning pending the bond bill, and the Stewart amendment provided the chief topic of discussion, but no decision was reached. Another caucus is called for Monday, and in the meantime the committee will undertake the task of outlining the financial policy for the party. Some rather vigorous efforts were made during the caucus to reform the silver views of Senator Stewart, of Nevada, but without any apparent effect. An effort was made to reach a unanimous agreement to favor Palmer's motion to recommit the bond bill, but several silver men refused to assent to this proposition.

Ten Years for Manslaughter.

MARYSVILLE, March 30.—The Rev. W. H. Washington, the colored preacher, convicted of murder in the second degree last week for killing W. H. Dyer in February, has been sentenced by Judge Taylor to ten years at Folsom. He did not want a new trial.

AUCTION SALE!

At 2 o'clock P. M.
April 2d, 1888.

At the corner of

Fourth and Sierra Streets,

Reno, Nevada, I will sell to the highest bidder, without reserve, the

PATCHEN STALLION,

SINDBAD!

SINDBAD is a dappled grey, was foaled May 5, 1877, stands fully sixteen hands high, weighs 1,200 pounds, is perfectly sound, with the exception of a small enlargement on cannon bone on left fore leg, caused in some unknown manner while enroute from Southern California to Reno two years ago, but has never caused lameness. Is a position SINDBAD is perfection, and a model carriage or saddle horse for either a lady or gentleman.

Though SINDBAD never was trained for speed he has demonstrated that he possesses speed in a high degree by turning a full mile track with two people in a buggy in 3:41, and repeating in 3:49, and showing quarter miles to thirty-six seconds (in 3:41 gait), carrying nothing on foot or hind except four ounces too weight.

SINDBAD was sired by Patchen Vernon, Dam Kentucky Bell and traces directly on the direct side of Grand Bashaw, a pure Arabian imported from Tripoli in 1850 by American Consul R. P. Jones.

On his dam's side he inherits two remote crosses of imported Messenger together with several crosses of rich thoroughbred blood, making a combination in blood elements as substantial and desirable as could be asked for when looked at from a practical standpoint, viz., speed, size, symmetrical proportions and disposition.

That the pet of SINDBAD is appreciated is proven by the fact that several of his first get foaled in 1880 were sold for $1,000 each, and many of them for $2,000 each.

The only one that has yet taken part in a race was a two-year-old and won both heats of a two in three race in 2:30, coming in on a jog.

About the four years past, past SINDBAD has earned in the stud a very nice round sum of money to cause the owner to part with them.

Her Troubles Over.

Nellie Florence, a poor unfortunate, who wandered from the paths of rectitude and virtue and adopted a life of shame, died at a late hour Wednesday evening of pneumonia at the house of John Singleton on Plaza street. She was penniless when taken sick, but her more prosperous sisters tenderly cared for her, and when their own means were exhausted appealed to the charity of the community. Her body was taken to Sander's undertaking rooms and from there the funeral took place this afternoon. All day long members of her class hovered over the lifeless clay, and although their hearts had been hardened for years, many a tear and sob told that there still existed that one touch of pity which makes the whole world kin.

Torn by a Blast.

Yesterday morning James Cavanaugh, a miner employed in the Hale & Norcross mine, Virginia City, was seriously and perhaps fatally injured by the premature explosion of a blast. The most serious injury is in the abdomen, where a hole was torn as large as a man's hand, from which a teacupful of broken quartz particles and foreign matter was extracted. There is a similar wound, but not so serious, a little lower down. Another on the chest and the groin and organs in that vicinity are severely lacerated. The attending physician considers the chances of his recovery extremely doubtful, but as Cavanaugh is young and a magnificent model of a miner, he may survive his terrible injury.

A New Nevada Corporation.

The Washoe Land Company has been incorporated in San Francisco to acquire and hold, improve, cultivate, pasture, sell, lease and mortgage lands in Nevada; to raise and deal in cattle and other live stock, and to own and operate irrigating ditches, reservoirs and water rights. The capital stock is $110,000; in eleven shares, of the par value of $10,000 each. The capital has been subscribed by eleven persons, and the Directors are Leopold Rosen-shine, William I. Walter, Jacob H. Neustader, Joseph and Herman Olcovich.

The Alien Law.

The Alien law applies only to Territories and the District of Columbia. There is no law that prohibits an alien from purchasing and working mines in California, Nevada or any other State, but he cannot acquire title to a mine by location, as that right is reserved to citizens of the United States or those who have declared their intentions to become such.

EASTERN NEVADA.

A Nut which the Supreme Court will have to Crack—Mines and Mining.

Regular Correspondence GAZETTE.

ELKO, March 27, 1920.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—There has been heretofore some discussion between some of the Assessors of this State and California and Idaho stockmen which has in many instances caused some feeling. As it is a question of law, no general conclusion has yet been arrived at, from the fact that there is no statute regulating or governing the question, nor has our Supreme Court ever been called upon to render a decision or to expound the law or equity involved in this controversy as to the right and justice of levying and collecting taxes upon stock driven into this State upon which the owners thereof have already paid a tax in California for the current assessment year. This question involves some very nice points of law and equity and is a judicial nut that our Supreme Court may be called upon some day to crack. I am, however, of the opinion that where parties with their stock are passing through the State to some neighboring State or Territory that under and by virtue of the principles of comity as established between States when such property being in transit and having already paid a tax for the current assessment year in a neighboring State, such stock should not be subjected to re-taxation. But should owners of stock seek to take advantage of comity between States by driving them from California or any other neighboring State through the State of Nevada to any other point outside of the State for the purpose of seeking a better market and remains long enough to become domiciled, invoking the law to the protection of their person and property, and continue to buy and sell or trade while so domiciled, and during the meantime their stock are grazing upon grasses of Nevada, such persons and property should be compelled to pay taxes while in the State of Nevada to the support of the government, notwithstanding they may have a tax receipt from another State. This position is based upon the principles of justice and equity, and does not in my opinion violate any rule of comity among States.

STOCK.

I am informed by Mr. McDermitt of Ruby valley that William Snow, Ira Wines, Colonel J. B. Moore, John Wright, Tom Short and Fred Burth, all heavy holders of cattle in Ruby valley, have had during the past winter over four-fifths of their bands wintering upon the open range south and southwest from that point in the vicinity of Deep creek. From a partial inspection of the several ranges and cannot be sold in competition with the vacuum Mr. McDermitt believes, notwithstanding the deep snow in early March, that the stock will come out of the winter in reasonably good condition; but he thinks that the number of calves secured upon the above-mentioned ranges will be much less than heretofore. The unusual amount of snowfall the latter part of the winter and the fore-part of March, is assigned as the reason for so meager a crop of calves. The amount of snow that fell took old-time residents by surprise and doubtless the stock, too.

The superabundance of snow in this part of the State would seem as if the clerk of the weather had determined to make up for his neglect in this matter. It makes no difference what the causes have been to bring about so desirable a result, the fact is the same. Our southeastern neighbors will have plenty of water for milking and milling, and old pasture fields will be renewed with the nutritious grasses for which this region has been heretofore so celebrated.

There are a large number of holdings of stock in Secret and Pole canyons, all of which have been fed during the past winter, and I hear of little or no loss in calves or old stock.

MICA DEPOSIT.

On the east side of the Ruby range, half way between Secret pass and Cave creek, there is situated on the side of the mountain an immense mine or deposit of mica, formerly called glimmer and by some limestones. Several of the mica have been made to open out these vast deposits, with a view of giving the plant a commercial value and market, but they have always ended in a failure. Several thousand dollars have already been expended in making openings upon the deposit which have exposed to view a quantity that would seem to be enough to meet the world's demand for such material. I have seen sheets or plates taken out as large as the average pane of glass. This deposit of mica is as clear and transparent as the best quality of glass. All mica, however, is not clear and transparent—a great deal is light, gray, black and occasionally green and violet. For this reason the above find should be of more commercial value than deposits that are more or less discolored. I believe the present owners are Myers Brothers of Ruby valley, who have thus far developed these deposits.

MINES AND MINING.

I met day before yesterday Mr. Miller of Mountain City, Elko county, who was visiting Elko for the purpose of taking the eastward-bound train of that day for his old home in St. Louis, Missouri. During a conversation I learned that Judge Max Schoen, and Lewis Goldstein of that place had, during the present month, made some extraordinary rich developments in the Resurrection mine. The incline shaft, which was started some two years ago and which is about 300 feet from the mouth of the tunnel, had reached the depth of 300 feet when it left, at which point a large body of free-milling ore had been opened out to view, some of the rich specimens going as high as $2,000 per ton and the main body of the ore averaging from $100 to $200 per ton in silver, carrying some 18 to 20 per cent in gold.

These gentlemen have several carloads of rich assorted ore ready for shipment to Salt Lake as soon as the snow shall disappear from the summit that intervenes between the railroad and Mountain City. All ore below $100 per ton are rejected by the assayer. The rejected pile contains a large quantity of second-class ore, which will work by mill process from $80 to $65 per ton. Drifts have been run from the bottom of the shaft above-mentioned east, west and southward. The east and west drifts have opened out high grade ore. The several drifts, crosscuts and upraises that have been made during the winter open out to view several hundred tons of rich ore ready to be knocked out. Some four or five years ago there was scarcely a half-dozen miners engaged in quartz mining in this district and it was considered by outsiders as a played-out district. Notwithstanding this gloomy outlook there were a few of the old pioneers who still held faith in the mines of Mountain City and continued to work and work several of the old locations as best they could with the slender means at their command. Among the old-timers who have and are now standing by the district are William H. Eard, Ben Gould and John Hoover. The latter continued to strike now and then rich pockets of ore. But it seems it was left for Judge Max Schoen, Columbus Harris and Lewis Goldstein to make this wonderful rich development which, if it develops into a mass body will soon make Mountain City a live and active place and carry old pioneers back to the palmy days of 1871-72.

Messrs. Hand and Miller have some very fine locations on California hill, in the immediate vicinity of Mountain City. Mr. Ben Gould is also interested in some valuable mining properties. The mineral formation of the mines of Mountain City are chiefly granite and porphyry and all carrying more or less gold. Heretofore placer mining has been carried on quite extensively, but at present is only engaged in by Chinamen.

LIVING TELEGRAPH POLES.

Timber Which the Axe of the Woodman Cannot Kill.

The Virginia Chronicle mentions the fact that a telegraph pole in use in Lyon county had taken root and was removed with much difficulty. The circumstance was considered so unusual that the butt of the rooted pole was sawed off and forwarded to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, there to be exhibited as a wonderful curiosity. If rooted telegraph poles should ever become popular as curiosities an enterprising man can make a fortune, as there are in the southeastern part of Nevada telegraph poles which have not only taken root but are covered with all the appurtenances usually belonging to a first-class tree. These seeming freaks of nature were the supports of the wires of the Nevada and California Telegraph Company (now defunct), which was in successful operation during the palmy days of Aurora, Candelaria, etc.

The originators of the company were Senator Haines of Douglas county, Walter Schwartz and A. C. Pratt. The starting point was at Carson, thence to Goona, Bridgeport, Bodie, Aurora and the terminus at Candelaria. Owing to meager and expensive freight facilities in those days (1873-79) the company was compelled to procure most of the material used from the country through which the line passed, and the poles were mainly furnished by the quaking ash and mountain cottonwood trees, which were found to be admirably adapted for the purpose, being from thirty-five to forty feet high in the clear, and could be prepared and placed in position at small expense. But in a short time line-repairers noticed that the poles began to gradually assume their original appearance and in less than a year nearly every pole began to sprout.

Brushes grew and the green foliage indicated that the proud spirit of the monarchs of the mountains had not been subdued by the woodman's axe.

WHEN THE COWS COME HOME
A Day Dream on the Range and Tragic Awakening.

"Honda," with his graphic pen, describes an exciting incident of range life in Colorado in a late number of the Pueblo Review and Standard as follows:

Do you remember when the sun went down, and old mother earth heaved a great fragrant sigh before she went to rest; when the lilacs that bordered the lane were so strong in their fragrance that you felt the sweetest; when the apple blossoms swung like dainty bells on every old scraggy tree in the orchard, and all earth was in harmony with poor, weak, miserable man? Then's the time the cows came home, and Bess, Dot, Brindle, and Crumple came with slow and dignified step up the flower-fringed lane to the milking sheds.

Little Jack Otten lay in the shade of his pony and saw the same picture as he watched his long-horned charge that hot New Mexican day. He saw his old father go out to the pasture, drop the bars and call the bossies. One by one he saw them come slowly up, as contentedly as they had come for years, and then Little Jack looked up and across the dry, hot plain where he was, and he saw seven clear-cut figures on the western ridge with long slender lances outlined between him and the sinking sun. Beyond them lay the ranch, and one cowboy had but little show against seven armed Apache braves. They knew the conditions as well as he did, and they knew also that the herd of cattle, if not Jack's scalp, was already theirs. Little Jack gazed hopelessly at them and rising mechanically drew in his horse's lariat, coiling it as he did so. The robbers were still two miles away and he knew that the chances were good to reach the circle bay ranch, seven miles eastward, if he ran for it and let the cattle go, but just then he saw the lilac-fringed lane again, and his old father's good bye, "John you are determined to go, so you shall; but wherever you go remember to do your duty and leave the rest to God." And then his eye grew clearer and his hand steady. He saw the way to save part of the cattle, and swinging into his saddle, he bunched them with a "Yep! Hi! Hilloo!" The raw Texans huddled together with their long horns clashing, ready for fighting and fleeing. With a little more yelling they were headed right and then Little Jack fastened his slicker to his lasso and swinging it wildly over his head charged down on the woolly pilgrims. One glance at that horrible yellow winged thing behind and the herd were in a panic, a few frightful yells and the panic becomes a rout, four shots from Jack's revolver and the route becomes a stampede that nothing save death or a greater terror can stop. The seven Apaches were just crossing an arroyo when they heard the thunder of six hundred hoofs on the ridge above, and looked up to see the crazy herd flying down the slope toward them. Barely time to swing out of their path and the arroyo was filled level full with dead cattle and the survivors, with little Jack at their heels, whirled past. Fast as they ran an arrow flies faster, and just over the next ridge little Jack falls from his pony and lies motionless on the slope. Just before sunset the ranch hands see the flying herd, corral them with Jack's pony and start on a hunt for its master. The lilacs blossom, the cacti bloom, but the cows and little Jack have gone home.

A Blooded Racer's Pluck
"Jockey" writes as follows to the St. Louis Globe Democrat:

A blooded racer possesses one essential quality that scrub horses seldom have, pluck. You will find many common horses that possess fine points, so far as wind, muscle and structure are concerned, but in a race they will nearly always throw up their tails and give up in disgust if passed by an adversary, or if they feel that they can't win. Flora Temple, the queen of trotters in her day, was an exception to this rule. She never knew what it was to be beaten, and always put forth her utmost efforts until the driver commanded her to slacken her speed. A race horse is like a game cock in that he must have nerve to supplement his natural powers. There are blooded animals that will do their level best until they drop. It is useless to use a whip on that kind of an animal; they are born fighters, and exult as much in a victory as their owners. Such racers also have superior intelligence, and if they are not too high-strung they can be trained in the arts and tricks of the turf. All blooded animals do not possess pluck, however, and such as are lacking in this quality are more fit for the plow than the track.
